

THE EDITOR SAYS—

Sudden death in our own community brings home to us the uncertainty of life. There was Ruskin McCoy in the prime of life cut down by Father Time without a word of warning. A young man in the prime of life, happily married, with a bright business future, taken from us in an automobile crash that would not have happened if the driver of the old car had obeyed the law and displayed tail lights. It is too late now in this case as Ruskin McCoy will be but a memory to loved ones and friends. We wish it was in our power to give words of comfort to the sorrowing ones, but it is not. To shed tears of sorrow and pray God for strength is the best we can advise. The large concourse of friends and acquaintances that filled the large church house and the bower of beautiful flowers attested to the high esteem in which the young man was held. May the clouds lie lightly over his grave.

Thanksgiving Day in 1621 at Plymouth, Mass., was celebrated with a feast and much giving of thanks. At this celebration we are told more Indians were present than there were whites.

This turkey day game between Sikeston and Charleston gives promise of being a hard fought affair and may the best team win, and that be our team. However, when the game is finished, let's join in good fellowship, and let there be no sore spots, except the contact sores caused by hard interference.

Lineup For Football Game Is Announced

Coach W. E. Mahew has named these men as ones who will probably be in the Bulldogs' starting lineup when they meet the Charleston Blue Jays at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

Officials for the game will be B. F. Laws, East Prairie, referee; Englehardt, Leadwood, umpire; and Meyer, Morehouse, head linesman.

So far this season the Blue Jays have lost but one game, to Jackson. Their victims were Chaffee, Matthews, and East Prairie in non-conference games and Caruthersville, Kennett, Dexter.

and Poplar Bluff. They have scored 164 points to their opponents' 63.

The Bulldogs' record is not as imposing since they have lost three games—to Jonesboro, Ark., the Humes high of Memphis, Tenn., and the Farmington Knights. They have won from Matthews, Perryville, Kennett, Chaffee, and Cape Central. Sikeston has scored 60 points to 70 for their opponents.

Sikeston won over Matthews 6 to 0 while Charleston defeated the same team 27 to 0. On the other hand, the Bulldogs scored in the last two minutes to beat Kennett 6 to 0 and the Blue Jays had to fight hard to take a one point victory, 7 to 6, from the Dunklin county squad. Charleston won from Chaffee 19 to 6 and Sikeston from the Red Devils, 24 to 7.

44 Towns In State Sell Liquor By Drink

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 25—Intoxicating liquor may be sold by the drink in 44 Missouri cities and towns.

Since the liquor-control law went into effect nearly two years ago, only 35 municipalities—10 of them in St. Louis County—have voted to legalize the sale of liquor by the drink.

Under the law, only cities of more than 20,000 were authorized outright to permit such sales. The local-option feature affected cities and towns having a population from 500 to 20,000.

Places which have voted to permit sale by drink are Caruthersville, Steele, Washington, Hermann, St. Charles, Macon, Excelsior Springs, Ste. Genevieve,

St. Mary's, Gideon, Wentzville, Sturgeon, St. Clair, O'Fallon, Owensville, De Soto, Crystal City, Portageville, Hayti, Perryville, Union, Novinger, New Madrid, Lexington, Sugar Creek, Valley Park, Ladue Village, Rock Village, Oakland, Affton, Brentwood, Maplewood, Clayton, Des Peres and Ferguson. The last 10 towns are in St. Louis County.

Cities authorized under the law to sell intoxicating liquor by the drink are St. Louis, Kansas City, St. Joseph, Springfield, Joplin, Sedalia, Jefferson City, Hannibal, and University City.

Package liquor and beer, either in bottles or by the drink, may be sold anywhere in the State by licensed dealers.

Kennett Pair Found Dead In Parked Car

KENNETT, Mo., Nov. 25—Jack B. Lord, 36 years old, an automobile mechanic, and Mrs. Louise Nations, 30, both of whom lived here, were found dead, presumably of carbon monoxide gas poisoning, in the back seat of Lord's automobile south of here this morning.

When the bodies were found, at 9 a. m., it was estimated they had been dead about eight hours. They were discovered by Fred Smith, son of a farmer, who was driving a wagon along the road.

Authorities expressed the belief their deaths were accidental. Apparently the dead parked the car about one and one-half miles south of the city, leaving the motor running, and exhaust gas had entered the closed car due to a faulty exhaust pipe. The car's gasoline tank was empty and the ignition turned on, according to Deputy Sheriff Fred Rigdon.

An inquest was begun this afternoon and continued to tomorrow after one witness had been heard.

Mrs. Nations had separated from her husband, Phillip Nations a farmer, and recently obtained a preliminary divorce.

Lord and his wife, who is now in Florida, separated about a month ago. They had two children. His parents live in Commerce, Ga.

Leo H. Bowen, southern representative of a Chicago circulation service, was here Tuesday to display a portable photo engraving plant installed in a trailer he carried behind his automobile.

The plant, manufactured by the Aurora School of Photo Engraving at Aurora, Mo., is complete and modern and contains some equipment perfected at the Aurora factory. It is used by Mr. Bowen in making demonstrations and in conducting campaigns for rural newspapers not fitted with photo engraving plants.

Not long ago, Mr. Bowen said, country papers were hand set because their editors considered linotypes excessively expensive. The demand of readers forced such widespread purchase of linotypes that now only a very few newspaper offices are without them. More recently, the public has cultivated an extensive interest in newspaper photographs, which rural papers without plants can use only after delays. Within a year, Mr. Bowen predicts, the demand for reproductions of photographs will be as great as was that for linotypes, and papers throughout the country will install equipment.

The plant made by the Aurora company is not expensive and may be easily operated by any reasonably intelligent person who takes a week's training course.

Mr. Bowen is visiting Southeast Missouri editors to show the plant, which is exactly like one installed two weeks ago in the office of the Dunklin Democrat at Kennett.

Anderson, who is 72 years old, was on his way to Morehouse, where as a member of the Little river drainage district board of supervisors, he had attended an annual landowners' meeting.

ANDERSON LOOKS FOR GAMBLING MACHINES

Sheriff Joe Anderson warned Scott countians Tuesday to dispose of gambling machines that are being operated in violation of state statutes.

"Today is the deadline," he said. "I don't want to see people get in trouble over these things, but Prosecuting Attorney W. P. Wilkerson is going to prosecute those who keep the machines in operation. I intend to start around the county tomorrow to see about these machines."

Anderson indicated that owners of gambling or pin ball machines are apparently trying to move them into this county from others which will not permit them to run openly.

Madrid Officer Paroled at Police Court Hearing

Joe Calluge, a sub-deputy sheriff under Sheriff Sam Harris of New Madrid, was paroled for sixty days Tuesday when he appeared in police court on charges of being drunk and of carrying three concealed pistols.

Calluge was arrested Saturday, but was granted a continuance when he denied the charge in court. He was freed on a bond of $200 signed by himself and his father, J. A. Calluge, a New Madrid county deputy sheriff. He was paroled to Harris.

Charges of disturbing the peace and fighting filed against Carl Powers and Marvin Carroll were dismissed by the agreement of the two parties when the defendants were taken into court Monday. Judge W. H. Carter had taken the cases under advisement after both men entered pleas of innocence to the charges. Cecil Powers, who was also accused of fighting, was fined $3 and costs when he pled guilty. He worked out his fine on the streets.

Youth Who Attempted Operation Gets 4 Years

Willard Hatley, 16 years old, of the Sanford community of Pemiscot county, was sentenced late Monday to four years in the Missouri training school for boys at Booneville on a charge of attempting to castrate Ralph White, a 4-year-old boy, November 7. White, who is now recovering in an Arkansas hospital, will not be maimed for life, physicians believe.

Earl R. Pool, 22-year-old member of a prominent Pemiscot county family, was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary Tuesday when he pled guilty in the circuit court to robbing Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Pickle, manager and bookkeeper of the Boeving Brothers' gin at Stanley, on November 6.

At the point of a gun, Pool escaped with $250 after overlooking a package containing $3000. The money was later stolen from a spare tire on Pool's automobile, where he had hidden it. Pool was an employee of the gin.

Ministers to Observe Tuberculosis Day

Pastors of all churches in Scott county are being requested to join in the nationwide observance of Tuberculosis Sunday, December 1, and devote a part of their morning service on that date to an explanation of the Tuberculosis situation in their community.

In an interview today Mrs. O. L. Spencer, president of the Scott County Tuberculosis Association, said, "It is most timely it seems to me that the Christmas Seal Sale begins on our National Thanksgiving day. It provides an opportunity for everyone to express gratitude for his own well being in a very practical way. Health so closely concerns all of us that the Christmas Seal Appeal to prevent sickness has the earnest backing of every man and woman in our county."

"I hope that the response this year to the Christmas Seal will be more generous than ever before in order that the local Tuberculosis Association may make an increasing contribution to the betterment of life of man through the prevention of diseases, especially tuberculosis."

CHRISTMAS SEALS AND WHAT THEY DO

By A. Chaeffer, Jr.

Continuing a custom that is now almost traditional in American life, Christmas Seals will appear again throughout the nation on Thanksgiving Day. From then until Christmas they will make their silent plea for aid for the tuberculous. For more than a quarter of a century the National Tuberculosis Association and its 2,000 affiliated units throughout the country have been waging war against this disease. They point out startling facts about it that deserve the attention of every one.

Although progress has been made in the fight, tuberculosis is still the greatest cause of death in this country between the ages of 15 and 45.

The annual toll is approximately 70,000 men, women and children—more than twice as many persons as are killed in auto accidents.

One and one-half times as many young women as young men between the ages of 15 and 24 are victims.

It causes an annual economic loss to the nation of nearly one billion dollars.

The work financed by Christmas Seal funds is varied, but it is all directed toward the discovery of unknown cases of tuberculosis, securing treatment for them, and educating the public in basic facts about the disease so they will know how to protect themselves from it. Education of the public is the fundamental purpose of the organization. The National Tuberculosis Association declares that if modern knowledge about the disease were properly applied by the public, tuberculosis could be wiped out almost overnight; all present deaths from the disease are totally unnecessary. Educational work is therefore unceasing and includes the distribution of literature and posters, lectures, radio broadcasting, the showing of motion pictures and lantern slides, exhibits and other devices.

Nursing service is frequently the major activity. Many associations conduct clinics at which tuberculin tests for children and chest examinations for adults are given. Tuberculin testing of children, which reveals whether tubercle bacilli are within the body regardless of whether active disease has developed, has assumed new importance in recent years. X-rays are given when the physical examination or tuberculin tests indicate the possible presence of active disease. Rehabilitation work—assisting the tuberculosis patient to discover his most productive activity and to secure adequate training in this field is being given greater emphasis as a result of recent studies. Some associations maintain a preventorium. There are essentially hospitals which care for children who do not actually have tuberculosis, but who are in danger of developing it either because they are physically under par or because they live in a home in which one of the members has active tuberculosis.

At the preventorium they are built up physically with good food, plenty of rest, and supervised activity that permits adequate exercise but prohibits over-exertion. All services are of course provided free. The varied program of work and the number of persons assisted by the tuberculosis associations during the year are a remarkable demonstration of the power of the penny, for it is all made possible by the sale of Christmas Seals for a penny each during the few weeks between Thanksgiving Day and Christmas.

DENVER WRIGHT SHOULD HUNT IN SCOTT COUNTY

It was perhaps unfortunate that lion and wolf hunter Denver Wright didn't join Alfred Halter Monday, for while he was hunting quail, Halter killed a twenty-five pound wolf.

Halter shot the animal on the Ben Adams farm at a range of twenty feet and promptly took it to Benton, where residents identified it as a gray timber wolf possibly a year old.

Halter saw the wolf after his bird dog ran it from its hiding place. He thinks he may have it mounted.

Wright is now in Iron county, still looking for wolves, which he failed to find near Neely's Landing.

COTTON EXPORTS INCREASE 119,000 Bales Greater in October Than One Year Ago

Exports of American cotton showed a gain of 119,000 running bales in October 1935 over the same month in 1934, with indications that exports will continue to be somewhat greater this season than last, according to an official statement received this week by County Agent Broom from state headquarters of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

These gains were explained in a quotation from W. B. Camp, assistant director of the Division of Cotton, as follows:

"This increase in exports is due in some degree to the change in the U. S. cotton loan policy which has made a larger percentage of American cotton available to world trade, On November 1, but 33,193 bales had gone into the 10-cent loan. The change in loan policy also has brought the price of American cotton more nearly in line with the prices of all foreign cotton."

"Another factor entering into the increase of exports of American cotton was the depletion last year of the foreign supply of American cotton; more was consumed from stocks than was purchased."

"While there are many reasons why foreign countries have not been taking their normal quantity of American cotton, one of the main difficulties has been in the matter of obtaining foreign exchange. This was particularly true of Germany and to some extent of Italy and Poland."

"Of the monetary gold supply of $21,924,000,000 in the world, approximately $9,368,000,000 is held in the U. S. This makes it difficult for foreign countries to pay with gold for American cotton. England, for instance, has $1,595,000,000 of gold and Germany $38,000,000."

"Foreign countries owe the U. S., including war debts, more than $20,000,000,000 which decreases their ability to get exchange to purchase American cotton, and the discontinuance of the policy of lending money to foreign countries to purchase American cotton further decreases their ability to buy it."

"The continuance of the U. S. policy of refusal to accept goods in payment for cotton adds another difficulty. The tariff wall is so high that it makes it impossible for foreign countries to exchange goods for cotton."

VOCATIONAL GUIDANCE
By H. Harry Zimmerman
Ninety per cent of the workers today are in the wrong occupations. If you doubt this statement examine any reliable records on the matter and also note how many successful men we have. Talk to the first one hundred men you meet and find out how many are earning $5,000 a year or more. An inspection of bankruptcy records will prove interesting and will show that only about 5 per cent of the businesses conducted in the United States are run at a profit. Life Insurance records show that only 3 per cent of the men who die leave an estate of $10,000 or more.

Why this terrific waste? Why is it that out of a class of 65 medical students in one of our universities only four are practitioners? Why is it that the average lawyer advises the young men to-day not to study law, the doctors say their profession is overcrowded, every mechanic expresses similar sentiments and the members of every vocation tells us the same story.

The truth of the matter is that no profession or occupation is overcrowded. There is plenty of room at the top. The world is clamoring for efficient men in every line of endeavor. Theodore N. Vail says he cannot find ten men he wants. Their salary is $10,000 a year. The modern business world brushes the mediocre individual aside to make room for the man who is by nature and training endowed with the "right-of-way". Any business man will tell you his greatest difficulty lies in getting the right man to fulfill his orders and that the remuneration and other considerations are immaterial.

Thomas A. Edison, the American electrical wizard, was the right man in the right place. He delighted in his work which consisted of eighteen hours mental and physical labor every day. To another man his tasks would be irksome, the hours unbearable and the work uninteresting; but Edison gloried in his activities, and his name is known all over the world for his marvelous inventions.

Abraham Lincoln was a failure as a merchant. He also tried farming, lumbering, rail splitting and running a flatboat. He was a teacher, postmaster, captain in the Black-Hawk-War, storekeeper and surveyor, and finally his talents as a statesman came to be noted and in the crisis of the Civil War, he was entrusted with the entire confidence of the nation, and emerged from this trying period with immortal fame. General Grant, would never have become known if he had remained in the tanning or real estate business, and yet any character analyst could easily have detected the characteristics that made him one of the world's greatest generals.

The beginning of wisdom is honesty with one's self. The student should write down on paper the exact characteristics of his own personality according to the analysis made by the requirements of the job and its probable environment. This is the only accurate method of putting square pegs in square holes.

It can only give an outline of the method to be followed. It all rests upon scientific analysis—analysis of yourself, and analysis of the different lines of business, their requirements and environments.

If possible get a complete analysis of your temperament and development by a competent character analyst. He will study the different lines of business under consideration with a view to the qualities and faculties need for success in each, and see which one fits best to your own powers. He will analyze each line, also with reference to the following points: preparation needed, capital needed, opportunities for advancement, the future of the business, competition, environment, (including climate, society, schools, churches, housing conditions, cost of living, theatres, libraries, etc.) possible income, associates, ethics, hours of work, and any other points that may occur to him as of importance in selecting your choice. When he has, then we will weight point against point, advantage against advantage, and choose where the average of all conditions is most favorable.

Remember that Vocational Guidance and Character Analysis require judicial qualities. Carefully consider the three factors of the job, the man, and the environment. By applying the knowledge gained a result of this study, with practical training you will soon feel able to solve the problems of the "misfit."

For instance in studying different occupations, we noticed that every vocation demanded different types of men and it is a simple matter for the student to verify these conclusions by personal observations. Early this spring, the author viewed the parade of the St. Louis police force and was struck by the fact that about 95 per cent of the men in this organization have the motive temperament combined with strong and prominent chins. The same may be said to be true of the firemen.

At the last Presidential Convention in Chicago, the writer sitting in the balcony had a splendid opportunity for judging the hundreds of delegates who were there. He is almost safe in asserting that ninety-nine out of every hundred of these men had round, full back-heads, an essential characteristic of all politicians.

The next musical orchestra that you listen to will give you an opportunity in the study of texture or quality. At a recent teachers' conference the mental type of structure was strongly in evidence. At the Government railroad shops in Cuba, the author found the entire staff, not only in the mechanical, moulding, forging, lathe and machine rooms and course texture, but also the superintendent, bookkeepers, clerical staff, and the entire office force of similar quality.

It must be borne in mind, however, that no hard and fast rules can be laid down in this department of character study, for the average individual is sufficiently versatile and intelligent enough to succeed in any legitimate business, provided the training, knowledge and circumstances are favorable. To illustrate, we maintain that a person of the brunette concave type with poor circulations should never go into the ice business. Yet such a man inherits a valuable pond of water in a locality where the supply of ice is limited and makes a fortune in the ice business, provided he did not spend splendidly as agriculturists, stock-breeders, farmers and are successful in research work or mechanics where skill and patience is required. The brunette is inclined to meditative and is interested in theology and kindred subjects, whereas the blond is too practical, matter-of-fact and restless to think long and seriously upon these abstract subjects.

The brunette as we have seen is inclined to be thoughtful, meditative, introspective, philosophic, and theoretical, rather than practical, while the blond tends to be inventive, materialistic, commercial, scientific and positive.

GAY COLORS KEEP CHILD ON SAFE SIDE
Dress children in bright-colored outer garments in wintertime for their own safety, says the Bureau of Home Economics of the United States Department of Agriculture. While children should not play in city thoroughfares or even on country highways, because of automobiles, there are occasions when they have to cross streets or when they try to retrieve balls or other playthings from the path of traffic. They must be taught caution, but they can be further protected by dressing them in bright, conspicuous colors which motorists can see from a distance.

Last winter, the Bureau says, there was a swing away from the vivid red, blue, green, or orange, once popular for children's clothes. Children were dressed in brown, navy blue, gray, olive drab, or dull maroon, hardly noticeable to the passing driver.

Many mothers in summertime dress children in bright bathing suits for the sake of visibility. The same idea can be applied to winter garments.

Children like to wear gay colors. Those of nursery-school age choose them by preference. Those a little older are governed to some extent by what others wear so it may be necessary for mothers to get together and "create" a vogue for vivid colors in outer garments. If stores do not carry the desired shades in readymade wear, practical one-piece play suits in colors preferred for safety are easily made.

MUST HAVE ALLOTMENT

It will be necessary for any grower of potatoes in Scott County, who plans on growing potatoes for sale, to apply for an allotment for the coming year's crop, says County Agent Furry. While arrangements to determine such allotments have not yet been made, it is urged that every potato grower in the county list his name with the county agent so that an allotment application and all necessary information can be sent to him in preparation for the allotment campaign.

Each individual grower will have the responsibility of submitting information on his potato production and sales, to a committee of potato growers in his county, and this committee will recommend an allotment for the grower, under the provisions of the Potato Act. A state committee of growers will review the allotments recommended in all counties and assist in deciding on any adjustments that need to be made. Forms and regulations will be distributed through the office of the county agent who will have the assistance of grower committeemen.

Under the provisions of the Potato Act, growers with allotments not exceeding 5 bushels will be exempt from adjustment but they must secure an allotment and tax-exempt stamps. Growers whose allotments are above 5 bushels will be subject to such adjustment as may be necessary to bring the total sales of all growers in the county within the county allotment. This will be necessary in order that the total of all county allotments does not exceed the state allotment.

Silvertex Suits of Botany Elm Cloth
Hand Tailored at 22 Points
Certified by Science

$28.50

It is proverbial among peasants in various lands that you can bend an elm tree at the roots . . . but that you can never break it. It is appropriate, then, that Botany Elm Cloth should be the name for the purest worsted fabric of which Silvertex Clothes are hand-tailored. For Botany Elm Cloth is pliable, supple, beautiful in tailoring qualities and in drape . . . but Botany Elm Cloth is also tough, resilient, tireless in durability. Like the elm, Botany Elm Cloth can be bent for tailoring and modeling . . . but will break in wear and service. It is further appropriate that this cloth should be confined to the use of Silvertex Clothes. These Clothes are produced scientifically, beginning with the fabric itself, which is tested for color fastness and cold water shrink . . . and then subjected to pull twist and rub tests . . . and daylight examinations for flaws. The designer's ideas are executed exactly by skilled hand-cutting on carefully drafted patterns . . . and the suits are hand-tailored by experts . . . at 22 essential points. As a consequence, every Silvertex suit carries a Laboratory Certificate of Satisfaction.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Jim Carmichael, young prospector, without knowing her identity, falls in love with Swan, who runs a table at the notorious gambling den, the Bella Donna. Finding her in the gambling house, he stakes his entire fortune at her wheel, losing it all. Meanwhile, trouble is brewing for Swan and her partner, Louis Chamalis. A miner has been killed for protesting the crookedness of the play, and the honest citizens of San Francisco are in an arms.

THE VIGILANTES

Jim's presence at the Bella Donna was a fresh drop of poison in Swan's bitter cup. "I don't want you around here," she said when she discovered him installed as waiter. "If you don't mind," Jim answered. "I'd like to work around here until I get enough money to get a boat back to New York. This is about the only job I could get. I'm not very talented." Chamalis will stake you to the gold fields, or I will do it myself. "Mr. Chamalis is the soul of generosity, Ma'am, and so are you. But I don't think I have enough initiative to start putting around again in the sand. I've sort of lost my interest in gold. It's a troublesome possession." "You could steer clear of haps next time, Mr. Carmichael." "Someone would take it away from me," said Jim philosophically. "I'll give you your fare back," Swan said suddenly. "Back to Gramercy Park, Mr. Carmichael."

Swan intervened to save the press

"I'm sorry," Jim answered. "But I've got some notions on the subject of—handouts." "You mean," Swan commented bitterly, "that I'm not good enough to give you money?" "I mean, I'm not bad enough to take it," Swan turned upon him wrathfully. "Well, if you don't hate me, I hate you, Mr. Carmichael. Because, with all your talk about being a poet, you're small and you're mean and you're righteous — no different from the rest of them. Bring me my breakfast—some toast with butter on it, some jam and coffee—and, oh, yes, some lamb kidneys in wine sauce!"

Knuckles, strutting arrogantly down a street along the Barbary Coast, was confronted with a sign, tacked on a pole, which was for the first time a challenge to his unquestioned authority in that district. It read:

"Knuckles kilt my friend Sandy in the back. If you want to lose your money on a crooked wheel and get kilt in the back visit the Bella Donna. Chamalis is a crook." (signed) Sawbuck MacTavish.

Knuckles ripped the sign down with an oath and set out in search of the luckless MacTavish. He found him in front of the office of the "Clarion," where the demoralized Mr. Cobb, the editor, was steadily imbibing from a stone jug. Knuckles came upon MacTavish as the Scotchman was at work nailing up another sign in front of the "Clarion" office. He reached for his gun and fired. MacTavish staggered and fell to the ground. Cobb grabbed the dead man's revolver and approached Knuckles, who was tearing the sign down. "Get away from there, sir!" yelled Cobb, waving the gun drunkenly. "Get away from there! Nobody is taking that sign down. He put it there and it's staying. It's the first honest news the 'Clarion' ever had." Knuckles fired again. Cobb fell back, the gun unfired still in his hand.

The Trial

The bystanders, who had scurried to safety when the shooting began, now pressed forward around the dying old man, who addressed them as he would an audience. "Gentlemen of San Francisco," he said, "forgive me for dishonoring my profession . . . forgive me for betraying you as your conscience and your watch-dog . . . forgive an old man who went to seed, and forgot . . . forgot that the function of the press is to safeguard the decency of a free country. Let the 'Clarion' speak out and print the news of how I died on the streets of San Francisco — and keep on printing that news . . ."

Late that night Knuckles was walking toward the Bella Donna when out of the shadows three men silently came forward and walked beside him. Knuckles looked around quickly. He was covered with their guns. "Keep on walking, Mr. Jacoby," one of them said. "You're going to your trial."

"Trial? What for?" Knuckles asked in alarm. "Murder!" the man answered. As they walked, others joined them, until they reached the front of the Clarion office, where the crowd came to a stop. The trial was short. "Is this the man you saw shoot down MacTavish and Col. Cobb?" the leader asked. "That's the man," a miner answered.

"I will cross-examine the witness. Are you sure?" "Dead certain!" the miner answered. "Gentlemen, what is your verdict?" Then the chorus of voices answered: "Guilty!"

Later that night, citizens who had occasion to pass the "Clarion" office moved wide to the other side of the street. For from the sign that hung over the door swung the body of Knuckles, limp and lifeless.

The vigilantes had started to work. The body of the late but unlamented Mr. Knuckles Jacoby was still swinging from the signboard when Jim, unaware of the tragedy that was being brewed in the fog, prepared a second time to leave for home.

It was, strangely enough, the unregenerate Old Atrocity who had come to his rescue, performing, as the old man himself admitted, the first decent act in his lifetime. "I found a bag of gold that you dropped on the floor," Old Atrocity said. "Take it and leave. I hate to see you go, but I guess it's most suitable in the East." "For poets and failures," Jim said. "Can't I reward you, sir?" "I took the reward out in advance son," Old Atrocity stated, unabashed. "So's not to delay matters with any bickering." The way was clear for Jim to leave, nevertheless he hesitated at the table where Swan presided, spinning the wheel for three doleful and not over-prosperous customers. Business had fallen off since the killing. Old Atrocity observed Jim staring. "Hey, Swan," he called out. "He's going away."

Goodbye

Jim walked over to her table and stood smiling. "Well," he said, "this is the second time we say goodbye. I'm sailing on the Flying Cloud after all, with the handful of gold this saintly gentleman rescued for me."

"Licked," said Swan tersely. Jim shook his head disconsolately. "Why don't you say what you are thinking?" That I'm a harpy who smiled at you and cheated you. It's in the paper tonight . . . all about how I run this crooked wheel. You believe it, don't you? You believe that I'm a cheat, don't you?" Jim shook his head slowly. "No. I don't believe that."

"Then why are you crawling out without giving yourself another chance. That's not the way for a man to go. To crawl out of the Golden West with just the price of a ticket?" Jim quietly placed his bag of gold on the table.

"I'll try the black again, ma'am." Old Atrocity threw up his hands in horror. "Son, it's pure folly. It's an outrage. Nobody has ever won from that table."

"The Gentleman from Gramercy Park bets on the black," Swan said calmly. "Here it goes." The wheel spun rapidly. "Moses in the Mountain!" Old Atrocity yelled. "You won!" "Are you letting it ride, Mr. Carmichael?" Swan asked. Jim hesitated.

"I don't know, ma'am. I —" Swan interrupted him. "The play is made. On the black again. Here goes." And again black turned up. Until the third time, Swan halted play, calling out exultantly: "The game is closed! The Bella Donna pays off thirty-five to one on a number always. Mr. Carmichael!" She turned to Old Atrocity. "Take him to the Flying Cloud and put him on board. Let's have no more Galahads around this place."

To Jim she said: "Goodbye, sir. I'm afraid I'm not as good a loser as you were."

Hollywood Star-Lites

By Chuck Cochard

Hollywood, Calif., November 26 —The stage is now becoming a movie sideline with the announcement this week at 20th Century-Fox that Henry Duffy, famous west coast theatrical producer, was chosen by Joseph M. Schenck and Rarryl F. Zanuck, to head theater productions under the aegis of the studio. This is to encourage the development of writers, directors and players, to test new material and lend new support to the speaking stage. Rehearsals will start in thirty days on the Margaret Kennedy play, "Autumn," which will be staged in Hollywood and later in New York.

Your correspondent is in the opinion that this will lead to the re-birth of the stage to all its former glory (before the day of modern talking pictures). Not only will this help find new talent, writers and directors, but will aid materially in awakening this stagnant industry. We are also in the belief that it will help the once thriving vaudeville profession.

The motion picture industry is ever on the alert for something new.

Star-Lites: The big three of Hollywood, Clark Gable, Jean Harlow and Myrna Loy, have been cast for the leading parts in Faith Baldwin's famous story of metropolitan life, "Wife vs. Secretary." As Gable and Miss Harlow have been one of the most popular co-starring teams in the past this picture will bring Gable and Miss Loy to the screen for the first time since "Men in White." This should develop into one of the finest pictures of the 35-36 season. Can you imagine Gable in the role of the husband, caught between the loves of two women — his wife, Myrna Loy . . . and his secretary, Jean Harlow . . . One of the most outstanding character actors in America, Paul Muni, will play the leading role in "Good Earth," from Pearl S. Buck's immortal novel. As Wang, Muni is to play the Chinese peasant whose great love for his land leads to wealth amid an amazing plot of struggle, famine, love and human obstacles. If you can remember his past performances in "Scarface," "Black Fury," "Dr. Socrates" and "I Am a Fugitive," then you'll probably agree with us that he is the logical person for the part. Our only disappointment came from the fact that we thought a native Chinese would play the leading role—Now it's "Life Hesitates at 40!" At least that is the title of Charley Chase's latest fun film for Hal Roach, which went before a few days ago with Joyce Compton again playing opposite him.

Beauty Hints: Fra Angelico is Hollywood's latest coiffure stylist; Five hundred years ago the noted Italian painted a fresco, "The Annunciation," and in it he created a hairdress which was discovered by Adrian, ace fashion designer, in his search for a hairdress for Norma Shearer in her role in "Romeo and Juliet."

The coiffure is a simple one and is achieved by parting the hair in the center and combing it down softly at either side, to be fashioned into small, sculptured curls. The rest of the hair is straight, with slightly curled ends, lengthening as it reaches toward the back. It is shoulder length at the sides and at the back hangs below the shoulders, forming a rounded V. For the Juliet hairdress, Miss Shearer allowed her hair to grow to full length.

DO YOU KNOW: That in the Marx Brothers' first performance as a vaudeville team, Harpo was not given any lines, so he pantomimed and hasn't spoken a word on stage or screen since then?

On the Set: Director Robert Z. Leonard has barred ice cream from "The Great Ziegfeld" set because Luise Rainer gained three pounds—Feminine hearts everywhere are beginning to beat quicker. Clark Gable is on the loose again (in other words it is reported Mrs. Gable and her husband are going to get a divorce). At present he's in New York, but inside gossip has it that his actress friend, Elizabeth Allen, and New York society girl, Mary Taylor are his present objects of affections. Rochelle Hudson and Harry Richman are reported to be just that way about each other.

It's that distinctive flavor—that others have failed to match—that wins new friends daily. Blatz Milwaukee Beer — always the same—always just right. Order by the bottle or case —today. BLATZ BREWING CO. Established 1951, Milwaukee

INSIDE GOSSIP: Last week's world famous comedian is Charlie Chaplin, who is at present making "Modern Times." His leading lady sweetheart (in pictures and private life) is Pauline Goddard.

WHAT new, up-and-coming young male actor, who recently made his debut in an elaborate musical, is now romancing with a promising feminine star of the same studio. Here's a hint for you young folks. I mentioned a few weeks ago that he would be given an important role in a new picture, but studio officials hadn't made the appointment public. That's all for today. Wait till next week.

Washington Comment

Political and administration affairs do not furnish material for extended comment. It appears that there has been some misunderstanding in connection with the statement that federal relief will be cut off short on the first of July. According to the published report of the President's remarks on that subject, people have not been permitted to starve during the past four years, and next summer will be no more fateful. Congressmen can return to Washington with their effects in an over-night bag perhaps, since the next session is likely to be short. Reports that Postmaster General Farley will resign, like the report of Mark Twain's death, have been greatly exaggerated. The government appears to be maintaining a hands-off or at least a mouth-shut attitude regarding China and late developments respecting the war in Africa. Opponents of the party in power hope that during the next few months it will be caught close to a lee shore; its friends are doing their best to see to it that a good offing is maintained. Summed up, the politicians on both sides are uncertain as to what they are going to fight over next.

The trade agreement between the United States and Canada did not give rise, at the start at least to so much discussion as had been expected. Those who were hit by it voiced their protests, but there was no general cry of disapproval; nor was there any widespread shout of loud acclaim. President Cleveland said much that has been forgotten, but if one may judge by the conduct of the public when such a measure as the Canadian trade pact comes to the front for a brief hour, his statement that the tariff is a local issue is treasured as a memory gem.

Japan is reported to be ready to get after China if that country does not do something that has about it the flavor of turning over territory approximately equal in area to thirty per cent of the United States, and Italy is in Ethiopia on a similar errand. Folks other than the Chinese and the Ethiopians seem to think that what is going on is part of their business. At present, Greece for example could not annex New Jersey without starting talk. For several centuries after Columbus put the gray Azores behind him, the American continent made good pickings. It was large enough so that anybody could acquire a few thousand square miles without having any boundary troubles, and what the Indians and Aztecs thought about the proceeding did not count. Those were the good old days.

A Maryland policeman who gave a judge a ticket for overtime parking, and pressed the charge until a fine was paid, has been deprived of his job in the interest of economy. Economy may have been the bow that discharged the arrow, but it is to be wondered whether or not there was a drift of wind that carried the shaft to the particular mark in which it lodged. One of those writers whose books we used to have to read in the English Literature course counselled us to "Be bold, but not too bold." The policeman may have been taken out of school before his education was complete.

STAY-AT-HOME-EVENINGS

Brisk days are here. A cozy fire in the fire-place suggests one of those "nice to stay at home evenings" when the whole family will enjoy one of those simple informal Sunday night suppers. You know the kind—simple in detail but daintily served with just a few of your most intimate friends in for the evening. And the nice part of it is, there never is a time in the whole year when a Sunday night supper is so easy to prepare.

If you have ever looked over left-over chicken or fowl and wondered how you could utilize it to best advantage, here's a suggestion. It is so perfectly disguised in its new palatableness that even you will be surprised. Sunday night suppers, you know, suggest so many various menus. You'll be puzzled to know just which is the most appetizing but since it is chilly, the hot meal appeals to men especially. They'll simply thrive on left-over chicken or fowl made up in nice little patties or timbales of creamed chicken or, if there should be turkey, everyone will enjoy "Turkey Devilled".

For years, Sunday night suppers have gained in popularity. With the aid of the modern electric refrigerator, its preparation has become so simplified that there's practically no concern about it at all. Dad's suggestion, "Let's invite the Joneses over and have them come early" causes no last minute flurries or even keeps mother home from her Sunday afternoon ride.

A menu suggesting a casserole dish without the use of meat may also include a frozen salad prepared with gelatine and the remains of left-over chicken. Garnish with stuffed olives or hard-boiled eggs together with a sprig of green pepper and a dash of pimiento. Chill in irregular shaped molds. Individual ones, molded out dainty gelatine combinations of gobbles for November and bells for December, are the most popular at this season of the year. Frozen salads, in particular, lend color to the meal, and it's an excellent idea to select one that will blend in effectively with the color scheme of the centerpiece and the candles.

Lay the table in the dining room with a lace table cover and the more simple table decorations. The china too may be as informal as the china used for Sunday morning breakfast, and the more lively patterns are in excellent taste.

After you have carefully planned your menu and worked toward its end, it is surprising how easy the whole meal is prepared. Once you have acquired the knack of serving unconventional Sunday night suppers, you'll want a few friends in regularly. It really is a nice "homey" habit to acquire and an event the whole family will look forward to with keen anticipation.

Turkey Devilled

Cold roast turkey
 2 tablespoons butter
 Pinch of ginger.
 1-2 teaspoon curry powder
 1-2 teaspoon cayenne
 1-2 teaspoon pepper.
 Piquant sauce.
 Mix the butter, curry powder, pepper, cayenne, and ginger for the devilled butter together on a plate. Divide the turkey into pieces convenient for serving, remove all skin, score the flesh deeply, and spread lightly with the butter. When a highly-seasoned dish is desired place in Refrigerator for one hour or overnight, then grill over the fire and serve with piquant or other suitable sauce.

Hot Chicken Salad

3 cups diced, cooked chicken or other fowl
 1 1-2 cups mushrooms
 3-8 teaspoon pepper.
 3-4 teaspoon salt
 1 1-2 teaspoon onion juice
 1 1-2 pimientos, diced.
 1 1-2 teaspoon lemon juice.
 3 cups white sauce.
 Mix above ingredients and set in cool place for several hours. While making sauce, set chilled ingredients over hot water, then add to sauce, reheat and serve in timbale cases or croutades.

Cranberry Salad

1 lb. cranberries
 1-2 cup water
 1 cup sugar
 1 tablespoon gelatine.
 1-2 cup walnut meats
 1-2 cup celery, diced
 Juice of 1-2 lemon
 Few grains salt.
 2 tablespoons cold water.
 Wash and pick over the cranberries, add the water and cook until they burst, but no longer. Add the sugar and stir until dissolved. Soak the gelatine in cold water for five minutes, add to the hot cranberries, and stir until dissolved. When almost cool, add the walnuts, celery, lemon juice and salt, and pour into a flat pan or individual molds. When cold and stiff turn out of the molds and serve on lettuce leaves with mayonnaise or boiled dressing mixed with whipped cream.

Ernest Gilleau of Cape Girardeau will spend Thursday in Siketon with his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lindley.

Building a Better State

"A TRAGEDY OF YOUTH"

By J. W. Becker, Executive Secretary, Missouri Tuberculosis Association, St. Louis.

To see a promising young man or woman cut down by death is a tragedy; ambition and anticipation come to naught. Among the more than 2,000 deaths from tuberculosis in Missouri each year some 250 are of high school and college age.

It is an established fact, proven by scientific medicine, that tuberculosis is not hereditary. The disease is communicable, preventable and curable. The facts are simple. Knowing them the problem of cure and prevention is both a personal and a community affair.

Dr. Louis I. Dublin, a reliable and internationally known statistician, after years of study and research, has concluded that on an average including the children of the pauper and the millionaire, it costs, all inclusive, the sum of $10,000 to bring up a child to the age of 18 years.

Accepting Dr. Dublin's figure as a basis the home and the community in Missouri spend the sum of $2,500,000 on the 250 young people in this age group who die from tuberculosis each year. This cold cash figure takes no account of the grief and disappointment, nor the future assets the young men and women might be to society.

By a continuous and aggressive campaign of education extending all the counties of the state the "slaughter of the innocents" can be greatly reduced, if not entirely stopped. Effective organization all along the line, cooperation of all volunteer and official health and welfare agencies, will rout the enemy. If all the information now available for the cure and prevention of tuberculosis were put into practice in every community this disease would soon be a minor cause of death.

The State and local tuberculosis associations have set this as their task. Progress is being made slowly but surely. These organizations have but one source of revenue to carry on their educational campaign—the Annual Christmas Seal Sale. Last year the total gross sale in the state was $97,105.00. The goal for 1935 has been set at $112,000.00. The proceeds are shared by the local, State and National Associations.

Sam Viner has a cobbler shop in Baltimore. Last Sunday a little girl appeared at his door and asked him to mend her shoes. He told her he couldn't, as it was Sunday. But she pleaded and it was snowing, so Sam set to work. As soon as he had finished a policeman appeared and arrested him for violating one of Maryland's "blue laws".

Lead and Tin No Bar to Many Bugs and Rodents

Iron bars may imprison a tiger and a screen may stop a fly, but some insects and animals are equipped with chisel like jaws and teeth which can cut through metal.

California lead-cable borers for example, often damage aerial-telephone and high-tension lines in or near forests by boring holes in the lead sheathing. They do not eat the lead. They bore holes in it to establish new homes. Then moisture usually short-circuits the electric current. Linemen for telephone and power companies call the borer "the short-circuit beetle."

Many other wood-boring insects easily chisel their way through lead and tin signs which block their passageways and exist on trees, according to entomologists of the Department of Agriculture.

Hickory bark, which is even harder than most lead and will often deflect the blow of a sharp ax, isn't too tough for hickory-bark beetles. They bore through the bark readily. The sharp jaws of Lyctus beetles, often found in seasoned hardwood lumber, enables them to eat through certain kinds of tin and lead which block their passageways. Termites in biting wood grind it into a powder.

Rodents occasionally use their hard, sharp teeth on metal. Curious squirrels sometimes gnaw aluminum identification tags off trees. The ground mole sometimes gnaws into concrete, and cases of rats cutting lead pipes in buildings are not uncommon.

He says that if the Bible prophecies concerning these latter days are not true, then let's discard the Book of Books and resort to the ludicrous guess-work and absurdities of men who have not the grace of God in their hearts to comprehend or discern spiritual things.

This lecture pertaining to latter day prophecy in the time of the end, demonstrates what the future result will be the warring nations, the conquest for territory, the freedom of the press, freedom of speech, freedom of religion, will be jeopardized—and the persecution and suffering as we near the time of the end before the Second Coming of Christ, so says the preacher.

Elder Huffman says that eternal liberty, the liberty we now enjoy, will not always obtain in the time of the end and the close of the dispensation before the appearing of the Prince of Peace.

He invites every one, whether Bible scholar or infidel or atheist to hear this prophetic discourse Saturday afternoon, Nov. 30, commencing at 2 o'clock.

THE
EDITOR
SAYS—

Sudden death in our own community brings home to us the uncertainty of life. There was Ruskin McCoy in the prime of life cut down by Father Time without a word of warning. A young man in the prime of life, happily married, with a bright business future, taken from us in an automobile crash that would not have happened if the driver of the old car had obeyed the law and displayed tail lights. It is too late now in this case as Ruskin McCoy will be but a memory to loved ones and friends. We wish it was in our power to give words of comfort to the sorrowing ones, but it is not. To shed tears of sorrow and pray God for strength is the best we can advise. The large concourse of friends and acquaintances that filled the large church house and the bower of beautiful flowers attested to the high esteem in which the young man was held. May the clouds lie lightly over his grade.

This is to notify the "girls" that Abe Shainberg will be 37 years old Friday, November 29, and his favorite cigars are Ro-Tan. Front page position was requested for this notice.

Thanksgiving Day in 1621 at Plymouth, Mass., was celebrated with a feast and much giving of thanks. At this celebration we are told more Indians were present than there were whites.

This turkey day game between Sikeston and Charleston gives promise of being a hard fought affair and may the best team win, and that be our team. However, when the game is finished, let's join in good fellowship, and let there be no sore spots, except the contact sores caused by hard interference.

Lineup For Football Game Is Announced

Coach W. E. Mahew has named these men as ones who will probably be in the Bulldogs' starting lineup when they meet the Charleston Blue Jays at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

Officials for the game will be B. F. Laws, East Prairie, referee; Englehardt, Leadwood, umpire; and Meyer, Morehouse, head linesman.

So far this season the Blue Jays have lost but one game, to Jackson. Their victims were Chaffee, Matthews, and East Prairie in non-conference games and Caruthersville, Kennett, Dexter, and Poplar Bluff. They have scored 164 points to their opponents' 63.

The Bulldogs' record is not as imposing since they have lost three games—to Jonesboro, Ark., the Humes high of Memphis, Tenn., and the Farmington Knights. They have won from Matthews, Perryville, Kennett, Chaffee, and Cape Central. Sikeston has scored 60 points to 70 for their opponents.

Sikeston won over Matthews 6 to 0 while Charleston defeated the same team 27 to 0. On the other hand, the Bulldogs scored in the last two minutes to beat Kennett 6 to 0 and the Blue Jays had to fight hard to take a one point victory, 7 to 6, from the Dunklin county squad. Charleston won from Chaffee 19 to 6 and Sikeston from the Red Devils, 24 to 7.

44 Towns In State Sell Liquor By Drink

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 25—Intoxicating liquor may be sold by the drink in 44 Missouri cities and towns.

Since the liquor-control law went into effect nearly two years ago, only 35 municipalities—10 of them in St. Louis County—have voted to legalize the sale of liquor by the drink.

Under the law, only cities of more than 20,000 were authorized outright to permit such sales. The local-option feature affected cities and towns having a population from 500 to 20,000.

Places which have voted to permit sale by drink are Caruthersville, Steele, Washington, Hermann, St. Charles, Macon, Excelsior Springs, Ste. Genevieve,

St. Mary's, Gideon, Wentzville, Sturgeon, St. Clair, O'Fallon, Owensville, De Soto, Crystal City, Portageville, Hayti, Perryville, Union, Novinger, New Madrid, Lexington, Sugar Creek, Valley Park, Ladue Village, Rock Village, Oakland, Afton, Brentwood, Maplewood, Clayton, Des Peres and Ferguson. The last 10 towns are in St. Louis County.

Cities authorized under the law to sell intoxicating liquor by the drink are St. Louis, Kansas City, St. Joseph, Springfield, Joplin, Sedalia, Jefferson City, Hannibal, and University City.

Package liquor and beer, either in bottles or by the drink, may be sold anywhere in the State by licensed dealers.

Kennett Pair Found Dead In Parked Car

KENNETT, Mo., Nov. 25—Jack B. Lord, 36 years old, an automobile mechanic, and Mrs. Louise Nations, 30, both of whom lived here, were found dead, presumably of carbon monoxide gas poisoning, in the back seat of Lord's automobile south of here this morning.

When the bodies were found, at 9 a. m., it was estimated they had been dead about eight hours. They were discovered by Fred Smith, son of a farmer, who was driving a wagon along the road.

Authorities expressed the belief their deaths were accidental. Apparently they had parked the car about one and one-half miles south of the city, leaving the motor running, and exhaust gas had entered the closed car due to a faulty exhaust pipe. The car's gasoline tank was empty and the ignition turned on, according to Deputy Sheriff Fred Rigdon.

An inquest was begun this afternoon and continued to tomorrow after one witness had been heard.

Mrs. Nations had separated from her husband, Phillip Nations a farmer, and recently obtained a preliminary divorce.

Lord and his wife, who is now in Florida, separated about a month ago. They had two children. His parents live in Commerce, Ga.

Leo H. Bowen, southern representative of a Chicago circulation service, was here Tuesday to display a portable photo engraving plant installed in a trailer he carried behind his automobile.

The plant, manufactured by the Aurora School of Photo Engraving at Aurora, Mo., is complete and modern and contains some equipment perfected at the Aurora factory. It is used by Mr. Bowen in making demonstrations and in conducting campaigns for rural newspapers not fitted with photo engraving plants.

Not long ago, Mr. Bowen said, country papers were hand set because their editors considered linotypes excessively expensive. The demand of readers forced such widespread purchase of linotypes that now only a very few newspaper offices are without them. More recently, the public has cultivated an extensive interest in newspaper photographs, which rural papers without plants can use only after delays. Within a year, Mr. Bowen predicts, the demand for reproductions of photographs will be as great as was that for linotypes, and papers throughout the country will install equipment.

The plant made by the Aurora company is not expensive and may be easily operated by any reasonably intelligent person who takes a week's training course.

Mr. Bowen is visiting Southeast Missouri editors to show the plant, which is exactly like one installed two weeks ago in the office of the Dunklin Democrat at Kennett.

ACUTE INDIGESTION IS FATAL TO ORAN FARMER

COCHRAN DIED MONDAY OF ACCIDENT INJURIES

William Cochran, the Lilbourn resident who was severely injured late Sunday when he was struck by an automobile while he was walking on Highway 61, died at the Southeast Missouri hospital at Cape Girardeau Monday. Cochran was hit by a car being driven by Morris Frankel, a New Madrid merchant, Frankel said Cochran stepped directly into the path of his machine as he was driving near New Madrid.

A. J. Matthews of Portageville was re-elected to the board of supervisors of the Little river drainage district at an annual landowners' meeting held in Morehouse Monday. Matthews has been a board member since 1907.

W. P. ANDERSON INJURED WHEN TIRE CAUSES WRECK

W. P. Anderson, president of the Gideon-Anderson Company of Gideon, was hurt late Monday when his automobile left a rural road near Gideon and overturned.

Suffering four fractured ribs, bruises, and a dislocated right shoulder, Anderson was at first taken to his home but Tuesday was removed to the Barnes hospital in St. Louis.

Anderson, who is 72 years old, was on his way to Morehouse, where as a member of the Little river drainage district board of supervisors, he had attended an annual landowners' meeting.

The accident happened when a right rear tire of Anderson's car blew out. Anderson was thrown from it as it rolled over twice. A negro driver escaped with minor injuries.

RETIRED SCOTT FARMER SUCCUMBS TO PARALYSIS

Paralysis was fatal early Tuesday to Jacob Koelzer, a retired Scott county farmer. Koelzer, who was 78 years old, had been ill for more than a year. He died at his home in Cape Girardeau.

Funeral services will be conducted Saturday morning at St. Mary's church in Cape Girardeau. Burial will be in the St. Augustine cemetery at Kelso.

Koelzer spent most of his life on a farm near Chaffee, where he was born. He had resided in Cape Girardeau for thirteen years. Besides his wife, he is survived by six children, Mrs. Freda LaGrand of Chaffee, Charles and George Koelzer of California, Mrs. Josephine Tucker of St. Louis; and Joe Koelzer and Miss Pauline Koelzer of Cape Girardeau.

18 GIVEN INITIATORY DEGREE AT I. O. O. F. MEET

Eleven Sikeston candidates and seven from out-of-town received the initiatory degree at a meeting of the I. O. O. F. lodge here Tuesday night. Four of the out-of-town candidates live in Essex and three in Morehouse. Two members were re-instated.

One hundred Odd Fellows and their wives attended the meeting, at which Ben Wiedel of St. Louis, grand secretary, spoke. Refreshments were served before adjournment.

ANDERSON LOOKS FOR GAMBLING MACHINES

Sheriff Joe Anderson warned Scott countians Tuesday to dispose of gambling machines that are being operated in violation of state statutes.

"Today is the deadline," he said. "I don't want to see people get in trouble over these things, but Prosecuting Attorney W. P. Wilkerson is going to prosecute those who keep the machines in operation. I intend to start around the county tomorrow to see about these machines."

Anderson indicated that owners of gambling or pin ball machines are apparently trying to move them into this county from others which will not permit them to run openly.

Bridge To Be Built On Mississippi County Road

Requests for sealed proposals for construction of several roads and bridges in Southeast Missouri counties were issued this week by the Missouri state highway commission.

Madrid Officer Paroled at Police Court Hearing

Joe Calluge, a sub-deputy sheriff under Sheriff Sam Harris of New Madrid, was paroled for sixty days Tuesday when he appeared in police court on charges of being drunk and of carrying three concealed pistols.

Calluge was arrested Saturday, but was granted a continuance when he denied the charge in court. He was freed on a bond of $200 signed by himself and his father, J. A. Calluge, a New Madrid county deputy sheriff. He was paroled to Harris.

Charges of disturbing the peace and fighting filed against Carl Powers and Marvin Carroll were dismissed by the agreement of the two parties when the defendants were taken into court Monday. Judge W. H. Carter had taken the cases under advisement after both men entered pleas of innocence to the charges. Cecil Powers, who was also accused of fighting, was fined $3 and costs when he pled guilty. He worked out his fine on the streets.

Clyde Hasting and Roy Huey were each fined $3 and costs when they admitted being drunk. Fred Hill, a negro, was fined $5 and costs for the same offense and Oscar Bennett, also a negro, was fined $3 and costs for stealing coal. Youth Who Attempted Operation Gets 4 Years

Willard Hatley, 16 years old, of the Sanford community of Pemisacot county, was sentenced late Monday to four years in the Missouri training school for boys at Booneville on a charge of attempting to castrate Ralph White, a 4-year-old boy, November 7. White, who is now recovering in an Arkansas hospital, will not be maimed for life, physicians believe.

Earl R. Pool, 22-year-old member of a prominent Pemisacot county family, was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary Tuesday when he pled guilty in the circuit court to robbing Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Pickle, manager and bookkeeper of the Boeving Brothers' gin at Stanley, on November 6.

At the point of a gun, Pool escaped with $250 after overlooking a package containing $3000. The money was later stolen from a spare tire on Pool's automobile, where he had hidden it. Pool was an employee of the gin.

Ministers to Observe Tuberculosis Day

Pastors of all churches in Scott county are being requested to join in the nationwide observance of Tuberculosis Sunday, December 1, and devote a part of their morning service on that date to an explanation of the Tuberculosis situation in their community.

In an interview today Mrs. O. L. Spencer, president of the Scott County Tuberculosis Association, said, "It is most timely it seems to me that the Christmas Seal Sale begins on our National Thanksgiving day. It provides an opportunity for everyone to express gratitude for his own well being in a very practical way. Health so closely concerns all of us that the Christmas Seal Appeal to prevent sickness has the earnest backing of every man and woman in our county."

"I hope that the response this year to the Christmas Seal will be more generous than ever before in order that the local Tuberculosis Association may make an increasing contribution to the betterment of life of man through the prevention of diseases, especially tuberculosis."

A fifty-foot fall from a large pecan tree was fatal Monday after-

His wife and two children survive.

CHRISTMAS SEALS AND WHAT THEY DO

By A. Chaeffer, Jr.

Continuing a custom that is now almost traditional in American life, Christmas Seals will appear again throughout the nation on Thanksgiving Day. From then until Christmas they will make their silent plea for aid for the tuberculous. For more than a quarter of a century the National Tuberculosis Association and its 2,000 affiliated units throughout the country have been waging war against this disease. They point out startling facts about it that deserve the attention of every one.

Although progress has been made in the fight, tuberculosis is still the greatest cause of death in this country between the ages of 15 and 45.

The annual toll is approximately 70,000 men, women and children—more than twice as many persons as are killed in auto accidents.

One and one-half times as many young women as young men between the ages of 15 and 24 are victims.

It causes an annual economic loss to the nation of nearly one billion dollars.

The work financed by Christmas Seal funds is varied, but it is all directed toward the discovery of unknown cases of tuberculosis, and securing treatment for them, and educating the public in basic facts about the disease so they will know how to protect themselves from it. Education of the public is the fundamental purpose of the organization. The national Tuberculosis Association declares that if modern knowledge about the disease were properly applied by the public, tuberculosis could be wiped out almost overnight; all present deaths from the disease are totally unnecessary. Educational work is therefore unceasing and includes the distribution of literature and posters, lectures, radio broadcasting, the showing of motion pictures and lantern slides, exhibits and other devices.

Nursing service is frequently the major activity. Many associations conduct clinics at which tuberculin tests for children and chest examinations for adults are given. Tuberculin testing of children, which reveals whether tubercle bacilli are within the body regardless of whether active disease has developed, has assumed new importance in recent years. X-rays are given when the physical examination or tuberculin tests indicate the possible presence of active disease. Rehabilitation work—assisting the tuberculous patient to discover his most productive activity and to secure adequate training in this field is being given greater emphasis as a result of recent studies. Some associations maintain a preventorium. There are essentially hospitals which care for children who do not actually have tuberculosis, but who are in danger of developing it either because they are physically under par or because they live in a home in which one of the members has active tuberculosis.

At the preventorium they are built up physically with good food, plenty of rest, and supervised activity that permits adequate exercise but prohibits over-exertion.

All services are of course provided free. The varied program of work and the number of persons assisted by the tuberculosis associations during the year are a remarkable demonstration of the power of the penny, for it is all made possible by the sale of Christmas Seals for a penny each during the few weeks between Thanksgiving Day and Christmas.

DENVER WRIGHT SHOULD HUNT IN SCOTT COUNTY

It was perhaps unfortunate that lion and wolf hunter Denver Wright didn't join Alfred Halter Monday, for while he was hunting quail, Halter killed a twenty-five pound wolf.

Halter shot the animal on the Ben Adams farm at a range of twenty feet and promptly took it to Benton, where residents identified it as a gray timber wolf possibly a year old.

Halter saw the wolf after his bird dog ran it from its hiding place. He thinks he may have it mounted.

Wright is now in Iron county, still looking for wolves, which he failed to find near Neely's Landing.

COTTON EXPORTS INCREASE 119,000 Bales Greater in October Than One Year Ago

Exports of American cotton showed a gain of 119,000 running bales in October 1935 over the same month in 1934, with indications that exports will continue to be somewhat greater this season than last, according to an official statement received this week by County Agent Broom from state headquarters of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

These gains were explained in a quotation from W. B. Camp, assistant director of the Division of Cotton, as follows:

"This increase in exports is due in some degree to the change in the U. S. cotton loan policy which has made a larger percentage of American cotton available to world trade. On November 1, but 33,193 bales had gone into the 10-cent loan. The change in loan policy also has brought the price of American cotton more nearly in line with the prices of all foreign cotton."

"Another factor entering into the increase of exports of American cotton was the depletion last year of the foreign supply of American cotton; more was consumed from stocks than was purchased."

"While there are many reasons why foreign countries have not been taking their normal quantity of American cotton, one of the main difficulties has been in the matter of obtaining foreign exchange. This was particularly true of Germany and to some extent of Italy and Poland."

"Of the monetary gold supply of $21,924,000,000 in the world, approximately $9,368,000,000 is held in the U. S. This makes it difficult for foreign countries to pay with gold for American cotton. England, for instance, has $1,595,000,000 of gold and Germany $38,000,000."

"Foreign countries owe the U. S., including war debts, more than $20,000,000,000 which decreases their ability to get exchange to purchase American cotton, and the discontinuance of the policy of lending money to foreign countries to purchase American cotton further decreases their ability to buy it."

"The continuance of the U. S. Policy of refusal to accept goods in payment for cotton adds another difficulty. The tariff wall is so high that it makes it impossible for foreign countries to exchange goods for cotton."

Pratt contended in court that he owed Mary Tolliver nothing. Mrs. Clyde Tyson, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Walker, was granted a divorce in court Tuesday, the care and custody of her two minor children, the older one 4 years old, and $25 a month for their support.

Estes was heard in court last Thursday, and by the closed Citizens Bank of Senath in its case against Myrtle Johnson, a former bookkeeper for the bank, and her bonding company. Jurors for the two cases returned verdicts for the defendants.

The court found in the case of Aletha Owens, et al, versus Delmer Owens to remove trustee that the defendant had violated his trusteeship and appointed F. M. Dillard in his place.

Judgements were given E. M. Gould for $360.20 against W. C. Pantgill, et al, on a contract; the City of Chaffee for $162.78 against L. P. Foulk, et al, as principal and interest for street improvements and the property ordered sold under a special execution; and C. A. Powell for $850.93 against G. M. VOCATIONAL GUIDANCE

By H. Harry Zimmerman
Ninety per cent of the workers today are in the wrong occupations. If you doubt this statement examine any reliable records on the matter and also note how many successful men we have. Talk to the first one hundred men you meet and find out how many are earning $5,000 a year or more. An inspection of bankruptcy records will prove interesting and will show that only about 5 per cent of the businesses conducted in the United States are run at a profit. Life Insurance records show that only 3 per cent of the men who die leave an estate of $10,000 or more.

Why this terrific waste? Why is it that out of a class of 65 medical students in one of our universities only four are practitioners? Why is it that the average lawyer advises the young men to-day not to study law, the doctors say their profession is overcrowded, every mechanic expresses similar sentiments and the members of every vocation tells us the same story.

The truth of the matter is that no profession or occupation is overcrowded. There is plenty of room at the top. The world is clamoring for efficient men in every line of endeavor. Theodore N. Vail says he cannot find ten men he wants. Their salary is $10,000 a year. The modern business world brushes the mediocre individual aside to make room for the man who is by nature and training endowed with the "right-of-way". Any business man will tell you his greatest difficulty lies in getting the right man to fulfill his orders and that the remuneration and other considerations are immaterial.

Thomas A. Edison, the American electrical wizard, was the right man in the right place. He delighted in his work which consisted of eighteen hours mental and physical labor every day. To another man his tasks would be irksome, the hours unbearable and the work uninteresting; but Edison gloried in his activities, and his name is known all over the world for his marvelous inventions.

Abraham Lincoln was a failure as a merchant. He also tried farming, lumbering, rail splitting and running a flatboat. He was a teacher, postmaster, captain in the Black-Hawk-War, storekeeper and surveyor, and finally his talents as a wonderful statesman came to be noted and in the crisis of the Civil War, he was entrusted with the entire confidence of the nation, and emerged from this trying period with immortal fame. General Grant, would never have become known if he had remained in the tanning or real estate business, and yet any character analyst could easily have detected the characteristics that made him one of the world's greatest generals.

The beginning of wisdom is honesty with one's self. The student should write down on paper the exact characteristics of his own personality according to the analysis made by the requirements of the job and its probable environment. This is the only accurate method of putting square pegs in square holes.

It can only give an outline of the method to be followed. It all rests upon scientific analysis—analysis of yourself, and analysis of the different lines of business, their requirements and environments.

If possible get a complete analysis of your temperament and development by a competent character analyst. He will study the different lines of business under consideration with a view to the qualities and faculties need for success in each, and see which one fits best to your own powers. He will analyze each line, also with reference to the following points, preparation needed, capital needed, opportunities for advancement, the future of the business, competition, environment, (including climate, society, schools, churches, housing conditions, cost of living, theatres, libraries, etc.) possible income, associates, ethics, hours of work, and any other points that may occur to him as of importance in selecting your choice. When he has, then we will weight point against point, advantage against advantage, and choose where the average of all conditions is most favorable.

Remember that Vocational Guidance and Character Analysis require judicial qualities. Carefully consider the three factors of so much time actually with the commodity as to freeze himself to death. Amongst these may be mentioned salesmen of steel and aniline dyes, farmers, munition contractors, shipyard workers, machinists, aeroplane mechanics, etc. Despite these facts, a man would not think of using a saw for hammering nails nor a hammer for planing wood. This would seem ridiculous. A man of the motive temperament who tries to do teaching or clerical work would prove a failure. He is trying to saw wood with a hammer.

To summarize we shall list some of the occupations and the characteristics predominating in each. The blond being more versatile than the brunette is prone to rove, enter upon new fields of enterprise and is more magnetic in personality. Being positive, dimmering, dynamic, driving, aggressive, impatient, active, optimistic, sociable, quick, hopeful, speculative, changeable and variety-loving, he becomes successful at those occupations demanding these characteristics, such as salesmanship, politics, advertising, organizing, colonizing and promoting. He should not be given monotonous routine work or labor that demands care, patience and exactitude.

The brunette on the other hand is more conservative, patient, painstaking, plodding, slow deliberating, serious, thoughtful, specializing and has passive or negative in his energy. These people do splendidly as agriculturists, stock-breeders, farmers and are successful in research work or mechanics where skill and patience is required. The brunette is inclined to meditative and is interested in theology and kindred subjects, whereas the blond is too practical, matter-of-fact and restless to think long and seriously upon these abstract subjects.

The brunette as we have seen is inclined to be thoughtful, meditative, introspective, philosophic, and theoretical, rather than practical, while the blond tends to be inventive, materialistic, commercial, scientific and positive.

GAY COLORS KEEP CHILD ON SAFE SIDE

Dress children in bright-colored outer garments in wintertime for their own safety, says the Bureau of Home Economics of the United States Department of Agriculture. While children should not play in city thoroughfares or even on country highways, because of automobiles, there are occasions when they have to cross streets or when they try to retrieve balls or other playthings from the path of traffic. They must be taught caution, but they can be further protected by dressing them in bright, conspicuous colors which motorists can see from a distance.

Last winter, the Bureau says, there was a swing away from the vivid red, blue, green, or orange, once popular for children's clothes. Children were dressed in brown, navy blue, gray, olive drab, or dull maroon, hardly noticeable to the passing driver.

Many mothers in summertime dress children in bright bathing suits for the sake of visibility. The same idea can be applied to winter garments.

Children like to wear gay colors. Those of nursery-school age choose them by preference. Those a little older are governed to some extent by what others wear so it may be necessary for mothers to get together and "create" a vogue for vivid colors in outer garments. If stores do not carry the desired shades in readymade wear, practical one-piece play suits in colors preferred for safety are easily made.

MUST HAVE ALLOTMENT

It will be necessary for any

grower of potatoes in Scott County, who plans on growing potatoes for sale, to apply for an allotment for the coming year's crop, says County Agent Furry. While arrangements to determine such allotments have not yet been made, it is urged that every potato grower in the county list his name with the county agent so that an allotment application and all necessary information can be sent to him in preparation for the allotment campaign.

Each individual grower will have the responsibility of submitting information on his potato production and sales, to a committee of potato growers in his county, and this committee will recommend an allotment for the grower, under the provisions of the Potato Act. A state committee of growers will review the allotments recommended in all counties and assist in deciding on any adjustments that need to be made. Forms and regulations will be distributed through the office of the county agent who will have the assistance of grower committeemen.

Under the provisions of the Potato Act, growers with allotments not exceeding 5 bushels will be exempt from adjustment but they must secure an allotment and tax-exempt stamps. Growers whose allotments are above 5 bushels will be subject to such adjustment as may be necessary to bring the total sales of all growers in the county within the county allotment. This will be necessary in order that the total of all county allotments does not exceed the state allotment.

It is proverbial among peasants in various lands that you can bend an elm tree at the roots . . . but that you can never break it. It is appropriate, then, that Botany Elm Cloth should be the name for the purest worsted fabric of which Silvertex Clothes are hand-tailored. For Botany Elm Cloth is pliable, supple, beautiful in tailoring qualities and in drape . . . but Botany Elm Cloth is also tough, resilient, tireless in durability. Like the elm, Botany Elm Cloth can be bent for tailoring and modeling . . . but will break in wear and service. It is further appropriate that this cloth should be confined to the use of Silvertex Clothes. These Clothes are produced scientifically, beginning with the fabric itself, which is tested for color fastness and cold water shrunk . . . and then subjected to pull twist and rub tests . . . and daylight examinations for flaws. The designer's ideas are executed exactly by skilled hand-cutting on carefully drafted patterns . . . and the suits are hand-tailored by experts . . . at 22 essential points. As a consequence, every Silvertex suit carries a Laboratory Certificate of Satisfaction.

Unheard of prices for coats like these. Deep fleeces that won't burden you with unnecessary weight, that will

CHAPTER 5
WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Jim Carmichael, young prospector, without knowing her identity, falls in love with Swan, who runs a table at the notorious gambling den, the Bella Donna. Finding her in the gambling house, he takes her entire fortune at her wheel, losing it all. Meanwhile, trouble is brewing for Swan and her partner, Louis Chamalis. A miner has been killed for protesting the crookedness of the play, and the honest citizens of San Francisco are in an arms.

THE VIGILANTES

Jim's presence at the Bella Donna was a fresh drop of poison in Swan's latter cup.

"I don't want you around here," she said, when she discovered him installed as waiter.

"If you don't mind," Jim answered softly, "I'd like to work around here until I get enough money to get a last look at New York. This is about the only job I could get. I'm not very talented."

"Chamalis will stake you to the gold fields, or I will do it myself."

"Mr. Chamalis is the son of generosity, Ma'am, and so are you. But I don't think I have enough initiative to start putting around again in the sand. I've sort of lost my interest in gold. It's a troublesome possession."

"You could steer clear of harpies next time, Mr. Carmichael."

"Someone would take it away from me," said Jim philosophically.

"I'll give you your face back," Swan said suddenly, "back to Gramercy Park, Mr. Carmichael."

Swan intervened to save the press

"I'm sorry," Jim answered. "But I've got some notions on the subject of—handouts."

"You mean," Swan commented bitterly, "that I'm not good enough to give you money?"

"I mean, I'm not bad enough to take it."

Swan turned upon him wrathfully. "Well, if you don't hate me, I hate you, Mr. Carmichael. Because, with all your talk about being a poet, you're small and you're mean and you're righteous — no different from the rest of them. Bring me my breakfast—some toast with butter on it, some jam and coffee—and, oh, yes, some lamb kidneys in wine sauce!"

Knuckles, strutting arrogantly down a street along the Barbary Coast, was confronted with a sign, raked on a pole, which was for the first time a challenge to his unquestioned authority in that district. It read:

"Knuckles kilt my friend Sandy in the back. If you want to lose your money on a crooked wheel and get kilt in the back visit the Bella Donna. Chamalis is a crook."

(Signed) Scribeback MacTavish.

Knuckles rapped the sign down with an oath and set out in search of the luckless MacTavish. He found him in front of the office of the "Clarion," where the demoralized Mr. Cobb, the editor, was steadily imbibing from a stone jug.

Knuckles came upon MacTavish as the Scotsman was at work nailing up another sign in front of the "Clarion" office. He reached for his gun and fired. MacTavish staggered and fell to the ground. Cobb grabbed the dead man's revolver and approached Knuckles, who was tearing the sign down.

"Get away from there, sir!" yelled Cobb, waving the gun drunkenly. "Get away from there! Nobody is taking that sign down. He put it there and it's staying. It's the first honest news the 'Clarion' ever had."

Knuckles fired again. Cobb fell back, the gun unfired still in his hand.

The Trial

The bystanders, who had scurried to safety when the shooting began, now pressed forward around the dying old man, who addressed them as he would an audience.

"Gentlemen of San Francisco," he said, "forgive me for dishonoring my profession . . . forgive me for betraying you as your conscience and your watch-dog . . . forgive me, old man who went to seed, and forgot . . . forgot that the function of the press is to safeguard the decency of a free country. Let the 'Clarion' speak out and print the news of how I died on the streets of San Francisco — and keep on printing that news . . ."

Late that night Knuckles was walking toward the Bella Donna when out of the shadows three men silently came forward and walked beside him. Knuckles looked around quickly. He was covered with their guns.

"Keep on walking, Mr. Jacoby," one of them said. "You're going to your trial."

"Trial? What for?" Knuckles asked in alarm.

"Murder!" the man answered. As they walked, others joined them, until they reached the front of the Clarion office, where the crowd came to a stop.

"Is this the man you saw shoot down MacTavish and Col. Cobb?" the leader asked.

"That's the man," a miner answered.

"I will cross-examine the witness. Are you sure?" the miner asked.

"Dead certain!" the miner answered.

"Gentlemen, what is your verdict?" Then the chorus of voices answered:

"Guilty!"

Later that night, citizens who had occasion to pass the "Clarion" office moved wide to the other side of the street. For from the sign that hung over the door swung the body of Knuckles, limp and lifeless.

The body of the late but unlamented Mr. Knuckles Jacoby was still swinging from the signboard when Jim, unaware of the tragedy that was being brewed in the fog, prepared a second time to leave for home.

It was, strangely enough, the unregenerate Old Atrocious who had come to his rescue, performing, as the old man himself admitted, the first decent act in his lifetime.

Hollywood Star-Lites
By Chuck Cochard

Hollywood, Calif., November 26

The stage is now becoming a movie sideline with the announcement this week at 20th Century-Fox that Henry Duffy, famous west coast theatrical producer, was chosen by Joseph M. Schenck and Rarryl F. Zanuck, to head theater productions under the aegis of the studio. This is to encourage the development of writers, directors and players, to test new material and lend new support to the speaking stage. Rehearsals will start in thirty days on the Margaret Kennedy play, "Autumn," which will be staged in Hollywood and later in New York.

Your correspondent is in the opinion that this will lead to the re-birth of the stage to all its former glory (before the day of modern talking pictures). Not only will this help find new talent, writers and directors, but will aid materially in awakening this stagnant industry. We are also in the belief that it will help the once thriving vaudeville profession.

The motion picture industry is ever on the alert for something new.

Star-Lites: The big three of Hollywood, Clark Gable, Jean Harlow and Myrna Loy, have been cast for the leading parts in Faith Baldwin's famous story of metropolitan life, "Wife vs. Secretary." As Gable and Miss Harlow have been one of the most popular co-starring teams in the past this picture will bring Gable and Miss Loy to the screen for the first time since "Men in White." This should develop into one of the finest pictures of the 35-36 season. Can you imagine Gable in the role of the husband, caught between the loves of two women—his wife, Myrna Loy . . . and his secretary, Jean Harlow . . . One of the most outstanding character actors in America, Paul Muni, will play the leading role in "Good Earth," from Pearl S. Buck's immortal novel. As Wang, Muni is to play the Chinese peasant whose great love for his land leads to wealth amid an amazing plot of struggle, famine, love and human obstacles. If you can remember his past performances in "Scarface," "Black Fury," "Dr. Socrates" and "I Am a Fugitive" then you'll probably agree with us that he is the logical person for the part. Our only disappointment came from the fact that we thought a native Chinese would play the leading role—Now it's "Life Hesitates at 40!" At least that is the title of Charley Chase's latest fun film for Hal Roach, which went before a few days ago with Joyce Compton again playing opposite him.

Beauty Hints: Fra Angelico is Hollywood's latest coiffure stylist; Five hundred years ago the noted Italian painted a fresco, "The Annunciation," and in it he created a hairdress which was discovered by Adrian, ace fashion designer, in his search for a hairdress for Norma Shearer in her role in "Romeo and Juliet."

The coiffure is a simple one and is achieved by parting the hair in the center and combing it down softly at either side, to be fashioned into small, sculptured curls. The rest of the hair is straight, with slightly curled ends, lengthening as it reaches toward the back. It is shoulder length at the sides and at the back hangs below the shoulders, forming a rounded V. For the Juliet hairdress, Miss Shearer allowed her hair to grow to full length.

DO YOU KNOW: That in the Marx Brothers' first performance as a vaudeville team, Harpo was not given any lines, so he pantomimed and hasn't spoken a word on stage or screen since then?

On the Set: Director Robert Z. Leonard has barred ice cream from "The Great Ziegfeld" set because "Luse Rainer gained three pounds—Feminine hearts everywhere are beginning to beat quicker. Clark Gable is on the loose again (in other words it is reported Mrs. Gable and her husband are going to get a divorce). At present he's in New York, but inside gossip has it that his actress friend, Elizabeth Allen, and New York society girl, Mary Taylor are his present objects of affections . . . Rochelle Hudson and Harry Richmond are reported to be just that way about each other.

Goodbye

Jim walked over to her table and stood smiling.

"Well," he said, "this is the second time we say goodbye. I'm sailing on the Flying Cloud after all, with the handful of gold this saintly gentleman rescued for me."

"Licked," said Swan tersely. "Jim shook his head disconsolately. "Why don't you say what you are thinking? That I'm a harpy who smiled at you and cheated you. It's in the paper tonight . . . all about how I run this crooked wheel. You believe that I'm a cheat, don't you?"

Jim shook his head slowly. "No. I don't believe that."

"Then why are you crawling out without giving yourself another chance. That's not the way for a man to go. To crawl out of the Golden West with just the price of a ticket."

Jim quietly placed his bag of gold on the table.

"I'll try the black again, ma'am." Old Atrocious threw up his hands in horror.

"Son, it's pure folly. It's an outrage. Nobody has ever won from that table."

"The Gentleman from Gramercy Park bets on the black," Swan said calmly. "Here it goes."

The wheel spun rapidly. "Moses in the Mountain!" Old Atrocious yelled. "You won!"

"Are you letting it ride, Mr. Carmichael?" Swan asked.

Jim hesitated.

"I don't know, ma'am. I—"

Swan interrupted him: "The play is made. On the black again. Here goes."

And again black turned up. Until the third time, Swan halted play, calling out exultantly:

"The game is closed! The Bella Donna pays off thirty-five to one on a number always, Mr. Carmichael."

She turned to Old Atrocious. "Take him to the Flying Cloud and put him on board. Let's have no more Galahads around this place."

To Jim she said: "Goodbye, sir. I'm afraid I'm not as good a loser as you were."

INSIDE GOSSIP: Last week's world famous comedian is Charlie Chaplin, who is at present making "Modern Times." His leading lady sweetheart (in pictures and private life) is Pauline Goddard.

WHAT new, up-and-coming young male actor, who recently made his debut in an elaborate musical, is now romancing with a promising feminine star of the same studio. Here's a hint for you young folks. I mentioned a few weeks ago that he would be given an important role in a new picture, but studio officials hadn't made the appointment public. That's all for today. Wait till next week.

An agricultural climatological map of the world—showing sections best adapted to cotton, wheat, and other crops because of weather conditions as temperature and rainfall—was planned at the meeting of the International Commission of Agricultural Meteorologists in Danzig last summer. J. B. Kincer, of the United States Weather Bureau and 3 other agricultural meteorologists—1 from Austria, 1 from Germany, and one from Holland—were appointed to work with the International Institute of Agriculture at Rome on the project.

Actual work on the map—to be done by the institute—will not start until the soil map of the world now under way is finished, probably not for 2 or 3 years. Meantime the four members of the subcommittee will perfect a program of cooperation for recording, interpreting, and correlating weather facts needed to show the relation between climate and agricultural production throughout the world.

Washington Comment

Political and administration affairs do not furnish material for extended comment. It appears that there has been some misunderstanding in connection with the statement that federal relief will be cut off short on the first of July. According to the published report of the President's remarks on that subject, people have not been permitted to starve during the past four years, and next summer will be no more fateful. Congressmen can return to Washington with their effects in an over-night bag perhaps, since the next session is likely to be short. Reports that Postmaster General Farley will resign, like the report of Mark Twain's death, have been greatly exaggerated. The government appears to be maintaining a hands-off or at least a mouth-shut attitude regarding China and late developments respecting the war in Africa. Apponents of the party in power hope that during the next few months it will be caught close to a lee shore; its friends are doing their best to see to it that a good offing is maintained. Summed up, the politicians on both sides are uncertain as to what they are going to fight over next.

The trade agreement between the United States and Canada did not give rise, at the start at least to so much discussion as had been expected. Those who were hit by it voiced their protests, but there was no general cry of disapproval; nor was there any widespread shout of loud acclaim. President Cleveland said much that has been forgotten, but if one may judge by the conduct of the public when such a measure as the Canadian trade pact comes to the front for a brief hour, his statement that the tariff is a local issue is treasured as a memory gem.

Japan is reported to be ready to get after China if that country does not do something that has about it the flavor of turning over territory approximately equal in area to thirty per cent of the United States, and Italy is in Ethiopia on a similar errand. Folks other than the Chinese and the Ethiopians seem to think that what is going on is part of their business. At present, Greece for example could not annex New Jersey without starting talk. For several centuries after Columbus put the gray Azores behind him, the American continent made good picking. It was large enough so that anybody could acquire a few thousand square miles without having any boundary troubles, and what the Indians and Aztecs thought about the proceeding did not count. Those were the good old days.

A Maryland policeman who gave a judge a ticket for overtime parking, and pressed the charge until a fine was paid, has been deprived of his job in the interest of economy. Economy may have been the bow that discharged the arrow, but it is to be wondered whether or not there was a drift of wind that carried the shaft to the particular mark in which it lodged. One of those writers whose books we used to have to read in the English Literature course counseled us to "Be bold, but not too bold." The policeman may have been taken out of school before his education was complete.

STAY-AT-HOME-EVENINGS

Brisk days are here. A cozy fire in the fire-place suggests one of those "nice to stay at home evenings" when the whole family will enjoy one of those simple informal Sunday night suppers. You know the kind—simple in detail but daintily served with just a few of your most intimate friends in for the evening. And the nice part of it is, there never is a time in the whole year when a Sunday night supper is so easy to prepare.

If you have ever looked over left-over chicken or fowl and wondered how you could utilize it to best advantage, here's a suggestion. It is so perfectly disguised in its new palatableness that even you will be surprised. Sunday night suppers, you know, suggest so many various menus. You'll be puzzled to know just which is the most appetizing but since it is chilly, the hot meal appeals to men especially. They'll simply thrive on left-over chicken or fowl made up in nice little patties or timbales of creamed chicken or, if there should be turkey, everyone will enjoy "Turkey Devilled".

For years, Sunday night suppers have gained in popularity. With the aid of the modern electric refrigerator, its preparation has become so simplified that there's practically no concern about it at all. Dad's suggestion, "Let's invite the Joneses over and have them come early" causes no last minute flurries or even keeps mother home from her Sunday afternoon ride.

A menu suggesting a casserole dish without the use of meat may also include a frozen salad prepared with gelatine and the remains of left-over chicken. Garnish with stuffed olives or hard-boiled eggs together with a sprig of green pepper and a dash of pimiento. Chill in irregular shaped molds. Individual ones, molding out dainty jelatine combinations of gobblers for November and bells for December, are the most popular at this season of the year. Frozen salads, in particular, lend color to the meal, and it's an excellent idea to select one that will blend in effectively with the color scheme of the centerpiece and the candles.

Lay the table in the dining room with a lace table cover and the more simple table decorations. The china too may be as informal as the china used for Sunday morning breakfast, and the more lively patterns are in excellent taste.

After you have carefully planned your menu and worked toward its end, it is surprising how easy the whole meal is prepared. Once you have acquired the knack of serving unconventional Sunday night suppers, you'll want a few friends in regularly. It really is a nice "homey" habit to acquire and an event the whole family will look forward to with keen anticipation.

Building a Better State

"A TRAGEDY OF YOUTH"

By J. W. Becker, Executive Secretary, Missouri Tuberculosis Association, St. Louis.

To see a promising young man or woman cut down by death is a tragedy; ambition and anticipation come to naught. Among the more than 2,000 deaths from tuberculosis in Missouri each year some 25 are of high school and college age.

It is an established fact, proven by scientific medicine, that tuberculosis is not hereditary. The disease is communicable, preventable and curable. The facts are simple. Knowing them the problem of cure and prevention is both a personal and a community affair.

Dr. Louis I. Dublin, a reliable and internationally known statistician, after years of study and research, has concluded that on an average including the children of the pauper and the millionaire, it costs, all inclusive, the sum of $10,000 to bring up a child to the age of 18 years.

Accepting Dr. Dublin's figure as a basis the home and the community in Missouri spend the sum of $2,500,000 on the 250 young people in this age group who die from tuberculosis each year. This cold cash figure takes no account of the grief and disappointment, nor the future assets the young men and women might be to society.

By a continuous and aggressive campaign of education extending all the counties of the state the "slaughter of the innocents" can be greatly reduced, if not entirely stopped. Effective organization all along the line, cooperation of all volunteer and official health and welfare agencies, will rout the enemy. If all the information now available for the cure and prevention of tuberculosis were put into practice in every community this disease would soon be a minor cause of death.

The State and local tuberculosis associations have set this as their task. Progress is being made slowly but surely. These organizations have but one source of revenue to carry on their educational campaign—the Annual Christmas Seal Sale. Last year the total gross sale in the state was $97,105.00. The goal for 1935 has been set at $112,000.00. The proceeds are shared by the local, State and National Associations.

Sam Viner has a cobbler shop in Baltimore. Last Sunday a little girl appeared at his door and asked him to mend her shoes. He told her he couldn't, as it was Sunday. But she pleaded and it was snowing, so Sam set to work. As soon as he had finished a policeman appeared and arrested him for violating one of Maryland's "blue laws".

An academy for teaching gigoles better dancing manners has been opened by a night club owner on the French Riviera, who asserts the average gigolet "is not taking the proper pride in his work." He intimated some of the dance boys step on the feet of patrons and that's bad for business.

Lead and Tin No Bar to Many Bugs and Rodents

Iron bars may imprison a tiger and a screen may stop a fly, but some insects and animals are equipped with chisel like jaws and teeth which can cut through metal.

California lead-cable borers for example, often damage aerial-telephone and high-tension lines in or near forests by boring holes in the lead sheathing. They do not eat the lead. They bore holes in it to establish new homes. Then moisture usually short-circuits the electric current. Linemen for telephone and power companies call the borer "the short-circuit beetle."

Many other wood-boring insects easily chisel their way through lead and tin signs which block their passageways and exist on trees, according to entomologists of the Department of Agriculture. Hickory bark, which is even harder than most lead and will often deflect the blow of a sharp ax, isn't too tough for hickory-bark beetles. They bore through the bark readily. The sharp jaws of Lyctus beetles, often found in seasoned hardwood lumber, enables them to eat through certain kinds of tin and lead which block their passageways. Termites in biting wood grind it into a powder.

Rodents occasionally use their hard, sharp teeth on metal. Curious squirrels sometimes gnaw aluminum identification tags off trees. The ground mole sometimes gnaws into concrete, and cases of rats cutting lead pipes in buildings are not uncommon.

IS BIBLE PROPHECY TRUE, OR THEORIES OF MEN RIGHT

By Elder John B. Huffman
Elder John B. Huffman expects to make one of the most important of all his street addresses next Saturday afternoon, the weather permitting, in the little park in front of Sterling's store, Sikeston, Missouri.

He says that if the Bible prophecies concerning these latter days are not true, then let's discard the Book of Books and resort to the ludicrous guess-work and absurdities of men who have not the grace of God in their hearts to comprehend or discern spiritual things.

This lecture pertaining to latter day prophecy in the time of the end, demonstrates what the future result will be the warring nations, the conquest for territory, the freedom of the press, freedom of speech, freedom of religion, will be jeopardized—and the persecution and suffering as we near the time of the end before the Second Coming of Christ, so says the preacher.

Elder Huffman says that eternal liberty, the liberty we now enjoy, will not always obtain in the time of the end and the close of the dispensation before the appearing of the Prince of Peace.

He invites every one, whether Bible scholar or infidel or atheist to hear this prophetic discourse Saturday afternoon, Nov. 30, commencing at 2 o'clock.

A French-Alsacian scientist in London claims to have "debunked" the sun. A Dr. Fricke declared Old Sol is not hot, not even warm. If one were able to touch the sun, he asserted it would give a person the shivers, as it has an extremely low temperature. Explaining, he said the sun radiates "hertzian waves", neither hot nor cold; these cause energy when coming in contact with earth particles in the air and are so transformed into light and heat.
